Date of Records: 1910-1940

Size: 84 boxes

Finding Aid: Original by Deborah Hirschmann; revised by Eric W. Boyle, May 2012

Access to this collection is at the discretion of the Otis Historical Archives and material contained within the records may be subject to review before access is granted.

Biographical Note: Dr. Morris Steggerda was born in Holland, Michigan, in 1900, to John and Sena Steggerda. He obtained his A.B. at Hope College in 1922, his A.M. and Ph.D. from the University of Illinois in 1923 and 1928 respectively, in the Department of Zoology. In 1928, he married Inez Dunkelberger, an instructor at Smith College, and in 1932 their son Charles Steggerda was born. Dr. Steggerda began his career as Assistant Professor of Zoology at Smith College before becoming an Investigator with the Carnegie Institution of Washington at Cold Spring Harbor from 1930 to 1944. Thereafter, he was Professor of Anthropology at the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Early in his career, Steggerda's background in genetics and psychology attracted the attention of Charles Davenport, the prominent American eugenicist and biologist. From 1926 to 1928 they collaborated on a study of the British West Indies that formed the basis of Steggerda's doctoral dissertation (on the 'Negro-White hybridizations' he documented). Steggerda and Davenport subsequently collaborated on a series of publications, including most notably Race-Crossing in Jamaica. As an Investigator with the Carnegie Institution, Steggerda conducted studies that took him on two trips to Europe, ten to the Yucatan, numerous visits to the Tuskegee Institute, to the Navajo Reservation, and back to Holland, Michigan, where he traced the history of his own ethnic kin. Research from each of these trips is documented in this collection.

Series/Scope and Content Note: The predominantly anthropometric records in this collection were created and compiled by Steggerda throughout his illustrious career as a physical anthropologist. The collection includes a wide range of data gathered on a series of research projects, in a number of different formats, including photographs, anthropometric measurements, hair samples, palm prints, and dental records of American Indians, Jamaicans, Tuskegee University students, Mayans, Dutch school children, and white and black Americans.
